

FINAL FIGHT AS D. A. R. CLOSES

Mrs. Draper Would Transfer
Historical Sketches to Society's Library.

WILD DISORDER REIGNS

Proposition Sidetracked After Fierce
Debate, in Which Mrs. Story Upholds Ideas of Amendment.

A final factional battle, accompanied by the usual verbal pyrotechnics, yesterday featured the closing session of the twenty-fourth annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The fight was precipitated by the introduction of a proposed amendment designed to limit the duties of the historian general to the preparation of official publication by the society of historical and biographical sketches of the revolutionary ancestry of members and of distinguished women of the revolution.

Mrs. Story Wants It Passed.
The amendment was offered by Mrs. Amos G. Draper, of the District of Columbia, who explained that it would remove from the custody of the historian general all books, pamphlets, magazines and manuscripts of historical interest and would place them in the custody of the library general.

The proposition was opposed by a number of women who presented a document setting forth a statement against the proposed amendment. Mrs. William Cummings Story, president general, characterized this document as "one in which all ethics are violated in endeavoring to prejudice members of Congress against a resolution before it has been presented."

For nearly an hour the women discussed the proposition, which eventually was sidetracked. Mrs. Draper declared the amendment was designed solely to prevent a duplicate of work. Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Kansas, unsuccessful candidate for president general, entered the debate.

The wildest disorder reigned. There were clamors for recognition, and amidst all the confusion Mrs. Story tried to make a speech here and there. The parliamentarian had to be called in several times to straighten out technical tangles.

Another feature of the closing session was the reading of the report of the committee on peace and arbitration by Mrs. Janet M. Richards. She said the present military attitude must be characterized as "in time of peace prepare for war; in time of war prepare for peace." She made an ardent plea for an international police force and an international supreme court.

The closing session was called to order by Mrs. Story. Rev. Dr. William C. Chandler read the Scripture and offered prayer. Mrs. Story thanked the congress for the work accomplished and for the numerous gifts made for the liquidation of the debt on Memorial Continental Hall.

Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, of Tennessee, offered an amendment to the constitution extending the term of office of the president general from two to three years without re-election. Mrs. Draper proposed a four-year term without re-election. Action on both propositions was deferred until the next annual congress.

Mrs. Story, president general, will remain for a fortnight, probably, attending to the business of her office. Tomorrow morning she will hold the first meeting of the executive national board. The appointments of committee chairman will not be announced for some time yet, as the president general will probably not name them for ten days at least.

In the midst of an important discussion yesterday afternoon, a communication from John Hattie, director general of the Pan-American Union, was read, asking if there would be a session of the congress last night. Immediately, feathers bristled and heads shook, at the idea of any one asking such a question. A rather saucy message was returned to Mr. Hattie, stating that if he would state why he wanted to know they would endeavor to make an answer.

His reply came in fifteen minutes, and created a different atmosphere. Mr. Barrett commented the daughters for their lack in reducing the debt on their hall, the purchase of the piece of land adjoining the hall, and for their charming neighborly qualities. In closing Mr. Barrett remarked that he wished to aid the daughters in their purchase of a new hall, and thereby contributed one hundred feet as a gift. The daughters cheered and gave him a rousing vote of thanks.

The society will visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition on September 13, 14, and 15, which are to be known as D. A. R. days. They invited to accept Mrs. Phoebe Hearst's invitation to visit her place on a special train to be provided by her on the day which will best suit them.

MRS. A. M. THACKARA, JR., TO OPEN SARATOGA CASINO AS DANCING HALL

Saratoga, N. Y., April 24.—The Casino here, of time-honored memory, will be opened this season as a tango parlor and restaurant by Mrs. Alexander M. Thackara, Jr., of New York City, who is widely known as an exponent of the modern dance and as a suffrage worker.

The opening of the Springs Casino indicates the optimistic spirit prevailing concerning the success of the race meeting scheduled here this summer. Last year a big crowd of race-goers followed the ponies to Saratoga for the mid-summer meet, and it is expected that more devotees will attend this season.

Reported under the head of agricultural paper maturing after ninety days, this issue of paper constituting at present about a per cent of the total holdings of the banks.

A net gain of $250,000 in investments of municipal warrants was reported for the week. Cleveland, Boston and Chicago reported the largest increases. The amount of United States bonds held by six eastern banks remained unchanged at $500,000. An increase of about $500,000 in the amount of capital paid in was shown, this increase being due to advance payments by member banks on account of the third installment due on May 2. Deposits showed an increase of over $2,000,000. New York and St. Louis reported the largest gains under this head. Federal reserve agents reported a total amount of notes issued of $14 million dollars, secured in part by the deposit of 39.2 million dollars of gold. The banks reported 4.4 million dollars as their outstanding circulation. Their net liability upon the notes outstanding was stated at $10,885,000.

Chicago and Philadelphia reserve banks showed the greatest increase in cash reserves last week over the showing made by the former one, but there was an increase in all the bank reserves of $1,200,000. The increase in the gold reserves was even larger in proportion, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago leading in that respect.

New York reported net withdrawals of 13 million dollars of other cash, offset largely by a net gain in other cash of about 12 million dollars reported by the Chicago bank.

Loans and discounts showed a gain during the week of about one-half million dollars. Substantial gains under the head were shown mainly by the three Southern banks, Dallas showing the largest increase for the week. The amount of acceptances held by the Eastern and Western banks showed a decline by about $100,000 for the week, the large loss reported by New York being partly offset by gains at the Kansas City and Boston banks.

Gain in Paper Maturing Soon.
About two-thirds of the amount of acceptances held by the reserve banks is composed of paper accepted by member banks. Of the total amount of commercial paper held by the banks, no less than 41 per cent as against 25 per cent at the end of the previous week, was paper maturing within thirty days, while the share of sixty-day paper was 33.1 per cent as against 38.6 per cent a week before. An increase of about $100,000 was

BRITAIN DANGER TO U. S., HE SAYS

Former German Cabinet Officer Discusses World War.

THREAT ON ENGLAND

Boasted Security of Island Country
Does Not Exist, Dr. Dernburg
Tells Brooklynites.

New York, April 24.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former colonial minister of Germany, in an address before an audience of 200 professional men tonight at the University Club in Brooklyn, reiterated the possible terms of peace outlined by him in his letter of a week ago. At the same time, Dr. Dernburg took occasion to emphasize the fact that he was not speaking with the sanction or authority of his government, but simply as an individual.

After emphasizing the menace to the peace of the world, which, he insisted, is embodied in the British control of the seas, the speaker illustrated on a map the manner in which England, through her countless naval bases, dominates commerce.

He also pointed out that Great Britain, through her naval station in the Bahamas and Jamaica, is in a better position to control the Panama Canal in time of war than is the United States, whose nearest base is at Key West.

He did not mention the great United States naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, which is much nearer the canal than Key West or the Bahamas, but not quite so near as Jamaica.

Most Provide Employment.
Dr. Dernburg insisted Germany did not desire additional European territory, but he asserted that a strong, virile people like the German nation, with a natural increase in population of 1,000,000 yearly, must either send her subjects overseas or else develop such industries and such an extensive commerce as to furnish them with employment at home. In order to accomplish the latter task, he declared Germany had incurred the enmity of Great Britain, her chief rival.

"When it is remembered," said Dr. Dernburg, "that the trade of England amounts to $5,000,000,000 yearly, while that of Germany is $1,500,000,000—only a half billion less, it is apparent that the German people are in a grave position to permit one nation to dominate the world's greatest highway—the sea."

England in Danger.
In spite of the popular denunciation of German militarism in this country, the speaker showed that the cost of maintaining the British fleet and army for a single year imposed a per capita tax upon British subjects of 22 shillings. The per capita tax for the maintenance of the German army and navy, he said, was only 22 shillings.

"It has been said that my remarks have been in the nature of 'feelers for peace,'" said Dr. Dernburg, "and they have been taken as evidence that Germany is defeated."

"We hold the most fertile part of France, all of Belgium and the industrial section of Poland. Our armies are invincible and it is only a matter of time before we shall be able to drive them out."

"The boasted security of Great Britain against invasion does not exist. Fifty submarines can be constructed for the cost of a single Dreadnought. Their net liability upon the notes outstanding was stated at $10,885,000."

Economics Start War.
"The history of the world has proven," said Dr. Dernburg, "that there is generally an economic motive underlying all great wars. Here in the United States there is a general inability to appreciate Germany's position because of the totally different conditions in the two countries. The United States has only one-tenth of the population to the square mile that Germany has, and it is much richer in natural resources."

"Germany is an old country and its resources have been depleted through centuries of exploitation. The mines are exhausted in many instances and there is practically no supply of copper. A large part of the country is waste territory, being bare sand dunes."

"Industrial warfare, inasmuch as it is a struggle for resources, is a struggle for the future. Germany has made great strides in the forty years that she has been a political unit. But we need raw materials from this and other countries, especially cotton. We produce more pig iron than Great Britain, and in this commodity we are second only to the United States."

Two Ways for Expansion.
"We must, however, have open commerce and an unrestricted neutral zone in order to carry on our manufactures. England has checked our natural ambition for territorial expansion overseas in Morocco and in Acapulco, for example. Assisted by France and Russia and other great powers, she has kept Germany hemmed in and restricted, instead of consulting the economic necessities of the German people. England bartered Morocco to France in return for the guaranty of a free hand in India."

"Thus the only two methods of expansion, industrial and territorial, have alike been hampered in the case of Germany people. Nevertheless it is not part of brighter vision to acquire a territory. It is against German ideals."

"Europe is divided into nations largely through race differences, and each of the various races is jealous of its culture, its history, its characteristics and its religion. It is unwilling to share any of these things with its neighbor. Therefore, if homogeneous people can never be created in Europe through conquest."

"Let me add, however, that the evacuation of Belgium depends upon England. Germany will protect herself by retaining Belgium and establishing a naval base at Ostend."

Willard Pays Old Debt.
Chicago, Wis., April 24.—Charles Cutler, the local heavy-weight wrestler, who brought Jess Willard to the front of the heavy-weight boxing division, received a check for $1,200 from the new champion as compensation for his services as manager.

Cutler had obtained a judgment against Willard in Milwaukee for $2,500, but when the pair met a compromise was reached and Cutler on his part agreed to half. The pair then shook hands and parted the best of friends.

DEEP FOUNDATION.

Upon the depth of the foundation depends the strength of the structure.

Over a quarter of a century ago we laid the foundation for the business of O'Donnell's Drug Stores in the rock bed of honesty.

We have built step by step and stone by stone upon the foundation, never varying from the original standards.

We have built upon honesty—honesty in every article sold and in every statement made. Every word that ever appeared in any O'Donnell ad has been 100 per cent true. Every reduction has been an honest one—a genuine cut in a price that was maintained by the original standard.

Today the O'Donnell business is the largest of its kind in the Nation's Capital. So large that the average daily attendance at the 304 F Street Store is greater than the average daily attendance at Washington's largest department store.
